ABOUT EKAM NYAAY FOUNDATION

Ekam Nyaay Foundation is a pioneering Non-Governmental Organization (NGO) founded by renowned equal rights activist Deepika Narayan Bhardwaj. Established with a steadfast commitment to justice and equality, it is dedicated to promoting gender equality and addressing the pressing issues men face in society. Driven by the vision of a world where every individual is treated with dignity, respect, and fairness, Ekam Nyaay Foundation endeavours to bring about positive change through its multifaceted initiatives. We strive to provide a safe and supportive environment for individuals affected by false accusations, wrongful convictions, and other human rights violations, offering legal aid, emotional support, and counselling support. Through our research initiatives, we aim to shed light on overlooked issues about men's rights and gender injustice, advocating for legislative reforms and policy changes that promote fairness and equality for all.

OVERVIEW

Violence can affect individuals regardless of their gender, and it is essential to address all forms of violence, including instances where men are victims. While as a society we are constantly trying to address and resolve the issue of violence against women, giving special emphasis to violence against women by Intimate Partners, it is largely unacceptable and disbelieved that even women can be abusive and violent towards Men. Violence against men by women is a reality which is rapidly increasing as women become as empowered, powerful, and strong as men socially, economically and physically. Intimate partner violence can have serious consequences on the person who experiences it, and men are silent sufferers of the same.

Today, men are victims of physical violence, emotional abuse, sexual abuse, controlling behaviour, financial abuse, blackmail, and false implication perpetrated by intimate partners, but there is hardly any research or statistics available on the same. Men may face several challenges in reporting these incidents due to societal expectations and stereotypes, and there are no laws for them. India does not recognise domestic violence against men, as the Domestic Violence Act recognise only women as victims. Even the law that criminalises physical or mental cruelty within marriage (IPC 498A or Section 85, 86 of Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita) is only for married women and not married men. Thus, there is no data available in the National Crime Records Bureau on crimes against men by intimate partners.

At Ekam Nyaay Foundation, we endeavour to bring forth issues that men and their families are facing in society today due to legal and social apathy. This research report aims at bridging the gap of unavailability of any data to establish that men are also victims of violence and abuse at the hands of women today, and our laws need to be gender neutral to provide recourse, relief, and justice to such men.

RESEARCH PREMISE

Our understanding behind this study is that murder and suicide are two extreme outcomes of troubled relationships or suffering. Before the situation escalates to this extreme, there are undertones of abuse, violence and mental trauma. By documenting incidents of murder of men by wives or girlfriends and suicide by men due to reasons as described in the report, we are establishing that there is a considerable number of men who are victims of abuse, but as we do not have gender neutral laws, the actual numbers are not known. The incidents documented in this study have been taken from media reports that published these crimes and not from police data or National Crime Records Bureau data, as it is not recorded by agencies in gender-based formats in terms of victim and perpetrator.

This report is a result of painstaking effort that our team has undertaken over a year to document every incident that we could find.

RESEARCH METHODOLOGY

The NGO has gathered data from various online news portals, news clippings and even added a new search support enabled by technology, a Telegram Bot, to help crawl the internet to collect more data. The data collected is considerably small when compared in absolute numbers for the actual crimes because of various limitations- language, accessibility, technology, and dedicated resources.

Husband Murder Data - Data collected omits any crimes where the woman(perpetrator) has carried out the act of murder in self-defence or was not reported as a co-conspirator in the initial report.

Suicide by Men Data - We have not included news or cases where there was no involvement of a woman or female partner in pushing the male to suicide. Also, news related to financial issues, career, depression, or consumption of intoxicants as the catalyst/instigators/triggers for the act of suicide were not included.

The central agency that records and publishes statistics every year for all the crimes in India is the National Crime Record Bureau (NCRB). NCRB does not record data based on the relationship between the murderer and the victim. Hence, we collected data from the news reports published on online news portals and newspapers. The number of crimes is much more than what we collected because not all crimes are reported in the newspaper. Similarly, in the case of suicides also, while data on the total number of men dying by suicide in India every year is available and family problems remain to be the biggest cause of these suicides, any further understanding of what these problems were is not available.

In cases of Husband Murder, we have consciously not included cases where news reports described that the woman perpetrated the crime either in self-defence or where the man indulged in sexual abuse of his daughters.

In cases of Suicides by Men, we have not included cases where the news report did not mention any sort of abuse as described above as the probable cause of suicide.

CHALLENGES

Our primary source of cases collected in this research has been newspapers or digital media platforms. Not all crimes are reported in Newspapers or digital platforms. While different newspapers have different editorial policies, crime stories are given less than 10% space by most newspapers or media platforms. Of these, crimes perpetrated by women and children are least reported.

Most cases of murder or suicides by men are reported by regional media houses, whether TV, print or digital. Mainstream newspapers do not carry such stories unless the case is extremely brutal or highlighted by the police itself. Even in regional newspapers, such incidents are hidden in small corners and often not published in digital formats. Even from regional media, we could mostly collect cases only from English and Hindi editions due to the language barrier. To gather incidents reported in newspapers from other states where regional languages are more dominant, we had to rely on digital news and as discussed, most such reports, even if reported in newspapers, do not come in digital form. Hence, the data gathered can be said to be a small percentage of actual such cases happening across India.

The major challenge faced by the team was the ‘manual’ collection of data with limited resources. We have continued to use ‘volunteers’ as our source of funneling all data collected towards a verified database. We also deployed a Telegram Bot to crawl the Internet to assimilate the news, which was then vetted manually by our team to avoid any issues with the final compilation.

Prominent newspapers continue to provide limited space for crime stories, especially for those where the perpetrators were women or minors/ juvenile.

News reported in English and Hindi languages have continued to dominate the total numbers finally collected. We have used translation services for news reported in regional languages. However, the number of crimes reported by digital news portals remains low as compared to the traditional print copies which the regional news agencies publish for local-reader consumption.

Our endeavour for this report has been to initiate a process of covering more regional stories related to crimes against men, prominently related to husband murder and suicide by men.

In 2023, we released our first murder and suicide report using a consistent research methodology, collecting cases from articles published in mainstream media. As we'll see in the 2024 and 2025 reports as well, extramarital affairs remained the leading cause behind the majority of these murders.

YEAR-WISE AND STATE-WISE ANALYSIS OF HUSBAND/ INTIMATE PARTNER MURDERS (2024 – 2025)

In 2024, 244 husband/intimate partner murder cases were documented. The leading cause was adultery/ extra-marital affairs, accounting for 165 cases (67.62%), followed by domestic disputes with 57 cases (23.36%), financial reasons with 14 cases (5.74%), and other reasons with 4 cases (1.64%); the remaining 4 cases (1.64%) had no specified cause. State- wise, Uttar Pradesh recorded the highest number with 64 cases (26.23%), followed by Madhya Pradesh with 29 (11.89%), Maharashtra with 19 (7.79%), Rajasthan with 18 (7.38%), and Chhattisgarh with 15 cases (6.15%).

In 2025, 419 husband/intimate partner murder cases were documented. Adultery/ extra-marital affairs remained the leading cause, accounting for 300 cases (71.59%), followed by domestic disputes with 62 cases (14.79%), other reasons with 38 cases (9.06%), and financial reasons with 19 cases (4.53%). State-wise, Uttar Pradesh recorded the highest number with 123 cases (29.35%), followed by Bihar with 54 (12.88%), Rajasthan with 36 (8.59%), Maharashtra with 29 (6.92%), and Telangana with 17 cases (4.05%).

SPECTRUM OF VICTIM’S AGE: Among the intimate partner murder cases documented for 2025, victims' ages ranged from as young as 18 years to as old as 70 years, indicating that men across virtually the entire span of adult life, from those just starting out to those well into their senior years, remained vulnerable to being killed by a wife or intimate partner. Across all cases documented by the organisation in 2024 covering both husbands murdered by wives or intimate partners, the age of victims ranged from as young as 22 years to as old as 72 years, showing that this pattern of mental abuse cuts across nearly every adult age group and is not limited to any single life stage or generation of men.

SUICIDE BY MEN – DATA BY NCRB, 2023

A total of 1,71,418 suicides were reported in the country during 2023, showing an increase of 0.3% in comparison to 2022. The rate of suicides has decreased by 0.8% during 2023 over 2022 (Incidence of suicides per one lakh (1, 00,000) of population)

The majority of suicides were reported in Maharashtra (22,687), followed by 19,483 suicides in Tamil Nadu, 15,662 suicides in Madhya Pradesh, 13,330 suicides in Karnataka and 12,819 suicides in West Bengal, accounting for 13.2%, 11.4%, 9.1%, 7.8% and 7.5% of total suicides, respectively. These 5 States together accounted for 49.0% of the total suicides reported in the country.

The disparity persists across states, but Karnataka offers the clearest mirror: here too, male suicides are nearly double female suicides, driven by joblessness, social expectations, failed relationships, and increasingly, marital anxiety.

Between 2015 and 2022, more than 60,000 Indians killed themselves over marriage troubles: 26,588 men and 33,480 women. That historical bias toward women changed dramatically in 2023, when marriage-related suicides totalled 9,043, and men (4,863) outnumbered women (4,180) for the first time.

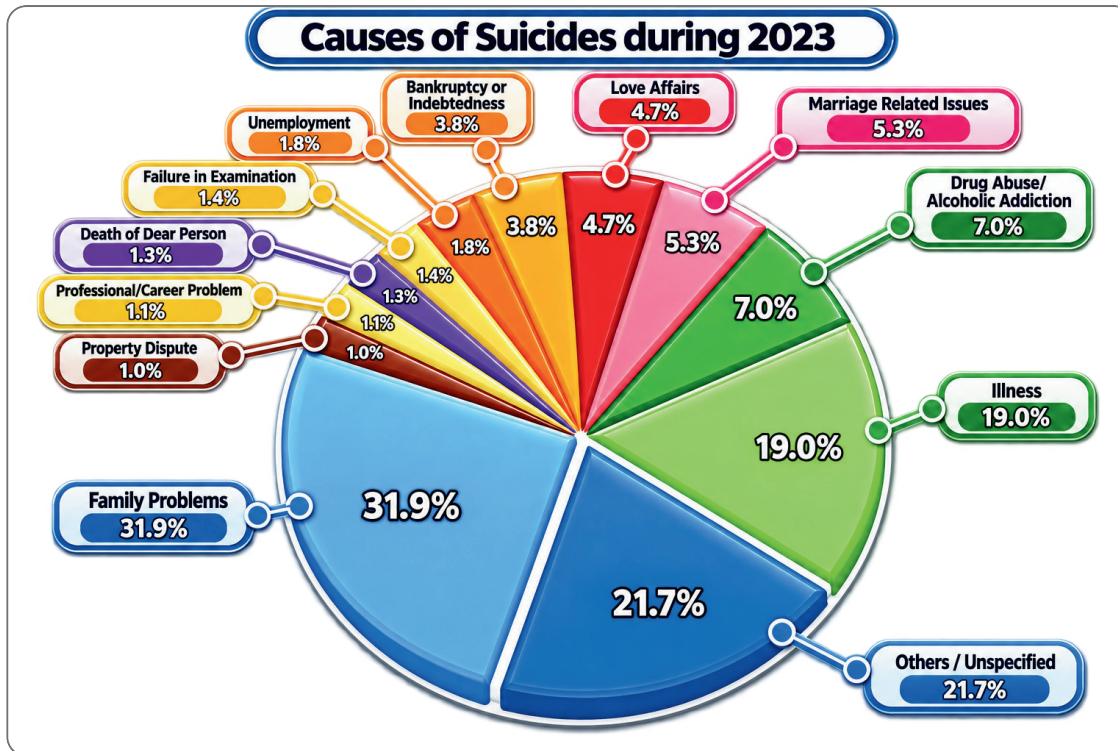

For men, however, the landscape is changing. The largest contributor for them is “non-settlement of marriage”, a deceptively simple phrase hiding complex realities: broken engagements, love affairs that implode under family pressure, deceit in relationships, financial exploitation, and emotional manipulation. Between 2015 and 2022, over 10,000 men died by suicide because a relationship didn’t culminate in marriage.

Extra-marital affairs, historically responsible for over 1,100 suicides a year, have also increasingly affected men, often intertwined with accusations, marital conflict, or legal threats. The shame and stigma surrounding a collapsing marriage, or an affair gone public, weigh disproportionately on men, who are culturally conditioned to be “strong” and silently endure emotional turbulence.

Age-adjusted rates paint the picture sharply. For every 100,000 Indians, about 14.2 men die by suicide compared to 6.6 women. And these aren’t mere statistics; they reflect the crushing weight of India’s silent gender burden: the pressure on men to be earners, decision-makers, protectors, and providers, even when the modern world chips away at every one of those roles.

As per the NCRB Data published under the header - National Crime Records Bureau (NCRB) Accidental Deaths & Suicides in India 2023 with the specific focus on Male Victims –

‘Family Problems’ and ‘Illness’ were the major causes of suicides, which accounted for 31.9% and 19.0% of total suicides, respectively, during 2023. ‘Drug Abuse/ Alcoholic Addiction’ (7.0%), ‘Marriage Related Issues’ (5.3%), ‘Love Affairs’ (4.7%), ‘Bankruptcy or Indebtedness’ (3.8%), ‘Unemployment’ (1.8%), ‘Failure in Examination’ (1.4%), ‘Death of Dear Person’ (1.3%), ‘Professional/Career Problem’ (1.1%) and ‘Property Dispute’ (1.0%) were other causes of suicides. (See Figure on next page)

SUICIDE VICTIMS BASED ON MARITAL STATUS - MALE VS FEMALE

31,058 Unmarried male suicide victims were reported against 13,667 Unmarried female suicide victims. 84,995 Married male suicide victims were reported compared to 29,931 Married female victims.

Most suicides were reported in the 'Married Group', with Male victims approximately 74%, while married females accounted for approximately 26%.

When looking at the 2023 NCRB suicide data for men, it is important to remember that these numbers don't always tell the whole story. Here are three main reasons why the data might be limited:

- 1) Only official Police Reports are counted.
- 2) Non-standardisation and lack of scientific approach in recording data.
- 3) Lack of intervention of medical experts to ascertain the reason for suicide.

Thus, the major cause of suicide amongst men continues to be 'Family Problems' followed by 'Illness'. Unemployment and Financial Bankruptcy hardly account for 5% of the total suicides reported by men. Also, the ratio of Men committing suicide outnumbers the numbers reported for suicide by women by a 3-1 ratio. Dispelling the myth usually propagated by feminists and the news agencies.

INTERNATIONAL REPORTING SYSTEMS

An overview of top countries that, as a standard policy and practice at a national level, have systems in place that collect data related to crime against men, especially murder by a wife or intimate partner

It's a common frustration for researchers that data connecting the dots between a victim's gender, their relationship to the killer, and the motive behind the crime is surprisingly rare, making it difficult to build a complete picture of how these three factors intersect in any given case.

Most global systems just don't track all three in one place. However, a few countries stand out for their transparency and detailed reporting. The following five countries and regions maintain comprehensive crime statistics that specifically track victim-perpetrator dynamics and the underlying contexts of intimate partner homicides.

 Countries with Detailed Victim-Offender Relationship Data in Homicide Cases
Country / Region	Detailed relationship data	victim-offender	Includes contextual/motive info
 United States	 NVDRS & homicide reports		 (circumstance coding)
 England & Wales	 ONS homicide stats		 in specialized projects
 France	 Detailed homicide statistics		 Partially available
 Canada	 StatCan homicide data		 Case summaries used in research
 European Union (e.g. Spain, Italy, Germany)	 Relationship data via EIGE/Eurostat		 Occasionally via special analyses

United States

Data system: The National Violent Death Reporting System (NVDRS) and Uniform Crime Reports record violent deaths, including homicides. These systems collect information on victim gender, relationship to perpetrator (e.g., spouse, intimate partner) and circumstantial details (e.g., motives, precipitating arguments, jealousy, custody disputes in some cases).

England & Wales (United Kingdom)

Data sources: Office for National Statistics (ONS) collects homicide data broken down by victim-offender relationship (including spouse/partner).

France

Detailed homicide data: France's criminal justice statistics include homicide counts with victim gender and the nature of the relationship (spouse, ex-spouse, partner) and sometimes "motives" or contextual factors categorising crimes (e.g., jealousy, domestic disputes).

Canada

Data reporting: Statistics Canada publishes national homicide data that includes the relationship between victim and offender, including spouse/partner for both male and female victims.

European Union (aggregated national data)

Through the European Institute for Gender Equality (EIGE) and Eurostat, many EU member states collect and report victim–offender relationship data and sometimes contextual details on homicides, including spousal and intimate partner killings.

CONCLUSION

Article 15(1) of the Indian Constitution says “The State shall not discriminate against any citizen on grounds only of religion, race, caste, sex, place of birth or any of them”. Yet, all the laws about mental, sexual or domestic abuse are only for women and not for men. While our constitution recognises the dignity and respect of everyone, when men are violated in person in domestic relationships, they cannot get their perpetrators punished. This discrimination needs to be addressed, and it's high-time that India makes its laws gender-neutral. Men facing prolonged legal battles, social ostracization, loss of employment, and family breakdown as a result of accusations whether ultimately proven true or false have, in numerous documented cases, been driven to severe psychological distress, self-harm, and suicide. These are not merely cinematic exaggerations but patterns that recur in real-world legal and mental-health discourse, underscoring those who are further victimized by delayed justice, media trials, and social condemnation and men who suffer the collateral damage of a system unequipped to move swiftly or fairly.

While there are no laws to protect men from abuse by intimate partners, the situation becomes further troubling because of rampant misuse of gender specific laws. False accusations have taken the lives of countless men in India, and our lawmakers should address these issues. For a better understanding of these patterns, India must also have a structured mechanism to address and record crime against men by women.

टेलर ने की आत्महत्या

जासं, वरेली : आज 10 अगस्त है...

इस दिन का मुझे कई दिनों से इंतजार था, आज मैं मर जाऊंगा। आज ही के दिन हमारी शादी हुई थी, लेकिन उसने मेरा घर बिगाड़ दिया। उसके (पत्नी को संबोधित) मामा के साथ अवैध संबंध ने मुझे अंदर से तोड़ दिया। कई बार समझाया कि मेरा घर मत तोड़, उसे पांच महीने का समय भी दिया, लेकिन कोई फायदा नहीं हुआ, इसलिए आज शादी की सालगिरह के दिन मैं मर रहा हूँ...। इन शब्दों के साथ टेलर ने चुन्नी के सहारे अपने पैतृक घर में पंखे से लटक कर आत्महत्या कर ली। सूचना पर पहुंची पुलिस को टेलर के फोन से उसका एक वीडियो मिला, जिसमें वह यह बातें कह रहे थे।
